Dear Mr. Macy:

The budget for the current fiscal year was reprogrammed on the basis that the special guard service [redacted] would continue to be financed by General Services Administration. This matter had been checked with the General Services Administration during August and at that time this Office understood that adequate funds would be available for the special guard service required. Subsequently, however, it has been determined that the General Services Administration would not be able to perform this service unless they were reimbursed for it and they have requested that $36,000 be made available to provide for the special guard service [redacted] with the transfer of warehouse activities to the [redacted] warehouse, for security reasons it was determined necessary to provide [redacted] delivery to the warehouse. [redacted]

When the arrangements were originally made it was anticipated that the [redacted] would be able to absorb the additional work involved with their then current staff. After the operation actually began functioning, however, they found that it was impossible to adequately handle the work with their present staff and have requested a transfer of $15,000 to cover primarily the wages of additional laborers required to handle the work adequately. This item was not included in the reprogramming of the budget since it was not known at that time that reimbursement would be required on this item.

On the basis of the above two items it is requested that a release of $51,000 be made from the reserve for contingencies with the understanding that the actual cash release will not be made unless it is determined necessary during the fourth quarter of the fiscal year.

Yours very truly,
